While it is impossible to guarantee a successful inflation, yet every possible precaution will be taken to prevent accident; and, with the experience acquired in the previous effort, it is confidently believed that the public will not be disappointed with the result on the present occasion. An opportunity to see this monster aerostat, and its novel and costly equipment, will be an event long to be remembered.

Mr. Donardson desires it distinctly understood that this undertaking is wholly his own, and that responsibility for its result is to rest entirely with him.
